

Dr. Reri MacLean

Reri MacLean is an executive coach and consultant who helps organizations identify and cultivate talent and to develop sustainable, high performance teams. She provides leadership coaching to the C-suite, VPs and Directors to increase alignment, communication and engagement.

Her work with senior leaders and high potentials focuses on gaining traction when territories shift and whose roles and responsibilities are expanding. She helps leaders assess the context, define expectations and focus their talent to inspire and manage their teams. Reri helps leaders at all management levels understand and leverage their unique talents and strengths, which often provide the key to address critical developmental challenges and add to an organization's bottom line.

Having coached leaders in financial services, engineering, technology and manufacturing, telecommunications, aerospace, healthcare, and biotechnology, Reri's clients include: KPMG, Ernst & Young, Phoenix Capital, Farmer's Insurance, Aramark, Johns Manville, Sony Pictures Entertainment, Intrado, Denver Health Medical Center, University of Colorado School of Medicine, AltaMed, Raytheon, Rocky Flats, and Amgen.

Reri's business experience began by establishing schools and then building coaching and consulting businesses. She is the past-president of the Professional Coaches, Mentors and Advisors Association and is on the board of directors for EmpowHer Institute. She was asked by the Women Presidents Organization in New York to establish a new WPO chapter for second stage entrepreneurs in Los Angeles. In 2007 Reri was recognized by Big Thinking Women as one of 50 women in Los Angeles who have shifted the aging perspective, created a legacy, and worked to help women become a political, social and economic force.

Reri holds a PsyD from the University of Denver, an Education in Counseling Psychology MS from Whitworth College, and a BA in Humanities from Macalester College, as well as a Montessori degree in Early Childhood Education from the Midwest Montessori Teacher Training Institute at Rosary College.

Born in Zurich, Switzerland, Reri has studied in Mexico and lived in Brazil, and she has provided cultural consulting to Americans doing business in Europe.
